OUR NOMINEES.

The Eureka Sentinel, in noticing the nominations made by the Liberal Convention of this county, closes with some handsome remarks, which we republish, as it shows the citizens of Lincoln county the estimation in which the nominees of the Reform party are held abroad. The Sentinel says:

We are personally acquainted with many of the nominees, and can fully endorse them as coming fully up to the Jeffersonian test—honest and capable. Phil Shoaff, one of the candidates for the Assembly, is an old printer, and an upright, honorable gentleman. He will make an excellent member of P. C. Hyman, formerly Mayor of Hamilton, and at one time a prominent candidate for Governor of this State, received the long term nomination for State Senator. He is a gentleman of fine attainments, and if elected will represent the people of Lincoln county faithfully and efficiently. Geo. T. Gorman, for County Clerk, is the right man in the right place. He is universally esteemed, and we shall expect him to receive the largest vote polled for any one man in the county. John Kane made a faithful officer during the bloody times in Pioche, and will be re-elected by an overwhelming majority. The ticket, taken altogether, is as good as one as could have been placed in the field.

REFORM.

The ponderous old San Francisco Alta that is only respectable on account of its age, concludes a long and labored article in favor of Grant's Administration by asking, "Is there any need of Reform?" Yes there is a great, a pressing need. We want an Administration that does not require to be bolstered up by affidavits from State Prison convicts, that will not levy illegal taxes on the commerce of the country, that will not while pretending to economy, permit wholesale robbery to stalk abroad unchecked and unpunished. In short, we want deeds and not professions like the boasted civil reform. We want all sections of the country to be treated alike, to be equal before the laws, to have the rights of American citizens and not simply because they live South of Mason and Dixon's line to be treated like Polish subjects of Russia.

The question of mixed schools, that is whether schools shall be attended by both white and colored scholars instead of having separate schools for the two races, has been brought before the Supreme Court of California, and will shortly be determined by that tribunal.

The Virginia Enterprise says that a good body of ore has been struck in the 16,000 foot level of the Imperial mine. It is reported that it looks like a "big thing"—something similar to the earlier developments made in the great strike in the Crown Point.

AN HONEST CONFESSION.

As most of the Radical papers are monomaniacs on the subject of the re-election of Grant, it is positively refreshing to find one of these that has the sense and manly candor which characterizes an article in the Gold Hill News of the 14th. from which we extract the following:

Although at the first blast it would seem that the Presidential contest is virtually ended, we would again caution Republicans against the danger of being too sanguine. If the result of the overwhelming majority which the Democratic ticket received in Georgia may be taken as an indication of the feeling of the Southern people, we may lose the electoral vote of all the Southern States except South Carolina, say 131 votes, which is an imposing array for Greeley. Should he carry New York, it would give him 166 electoral votes. A desperate effort will be made to carry Indiana, with her 19 votes, which would give him 181 electoral votes. Three more votes would give Greeley a majority of the electoral votes and elect him President.

The object of the article was to caution the Republicans from lapsing into false security, but to the Reformers it is an encouraging confession. In it is expressed, in simple but forcible terms, a clear and intelligent view of the field on which the present campaign is finally to be brought to a close. In an article which we published a few days since, we gave lists of States that we thought would certainly be carried by the respective candidates for the Presidency. In the States that we set down as certain for Grant, we included Arkansas, and placed Florida, Louisiana and Mississippi among those that were doubtful. Since then, the shameful excesses perpetrated by a Grant carpet bagger in Arkansas may serve to assist in relieving that unfortunate State from the cruel thralldom by which she has been so long and so pitilessly crushed. The open defiance of the laws by a blood-stained minion of the would-be Autocrat of America will cause such an intense feeling of indignation to arise, not only in Arkansas, in which such outrages have but too often occurred, but in other States, north as well as south, that not only all the Southern States, excepting South Carolina, may be expected to go in favor of Mr. Greeley, but will serve to secure New York and New Jersey beyond a peradventure.

Leaving out of the army of office holders whose tenure of power depend upon the breath of Grant, the whole white population of the South will cast their votes as a unit for the champion of Reform. They will do this not because they are unaware or forgetful of the part taken by Mr. Greeley on former issues which are now settled and forever decided, but because he promises them an honest and paternal Government. That is all the Southern people ask, all they require. They simply ask for equal rights and equal privileges, for equality before the law. They simply ask for the opportunity to rebuild their broken fortunes, to repair the ravages caused by the war, aggravated a thousand fold by the grinding exactions and intolerable oppression of which they have been the unfortunate victims. They desire to till their lands, to reduce the waste places to the uses of man, to build up and revive commerce. In a word, to cultivate and enjoy the blessings of peace, in the patient hope that under the blessing of Providence, the prosperity so long denied them may once again surround their heartshouses with smiling faces and contented hearts. To do this they ask—because it is an essential condition precedent—that they shall be allowed to exercise the franchise of American freemen, to choose their own representatives, to cleanse the Courts of justice from the presence of corrupt Judges who have rendered judicial proceedings a hideous mockery, to levy and disburse their local taxes; in short, to properly and lawfully exercise those privileges enjoyed by the more fortunate citizens of other sections. These demands have been conceded by Mr. Greeley as just and reasonable, and should be accorded, and this is the reason why they advocate his election with such remarkable unanimity.

Politics, as ordinarily understood, have nothing to do with the issue of the present campaign. It is simply a question of right and wrong, honesty and corruption, liberty or tyranny. This being the case, the Radical press may well caution its party against over confidence. Truth, honesty and justice may be defeated a thousand times, but as sure as the sun rises they will yet re-assert their sway over the minds and hearts of the great American people.

The Diamond finding companies are watching each other pretty closely. It is alleged that the Roberts party was followed and watched. These prying fellows were fitted out by a company in San Francisco called the Arizona Diamond Mining Company. This company has received two parcels of supposed gems from their prospectors and some are said to be veritable diamonds.

EMMA MINE.—The shareholders in London have received a telegram that the Emma Mine is producing $40,000 per week. We can beat that here in Pioche, the Raymond and Ely ships about $11,000 per day, Sundays not excepted.

Madame Agatha States, well known in California as an operatic singer, is performing in Australia with considerable success.

A MURDERER AND HER MOTHER.—The lawsuit and quarrels between Mrs. Fair and her mother, combined with the attempted suicide of the latter, are furnishing the San Francisco sensation papers with a perfect feast of items, if not of reason. It appears that the old lady took laudanum, but either in no sufficient quantity to cause death or else the speedy removal of the poison through the use of the stomach pump saved her.

he dutiful Mrs. Fair is happily shown up in the Chronicle, from which we take the following extract:

In a few minutes after Mrs. Lane had recovered consciousness, Mrs. Fair came panting up the long staircase accompanied by Mr. McWhippin. She entered the room, and gave one look at the half-animated figure on the bed.

"Well! mother," she exclaimed in a passionate tone. "What's this? Good gracious! do you want to bring more disgrace on us! Haven't we made sensations enough that you should go and do this?"

"Hush! child," exclaimed the mother in a low, feeble voice, "I've nothing more to live for—I wanted—to die;" and with this she fell into a violent fit of weeping.

"Well," said Mrs. Fair—her anger now raising to its highest pitch—"then why didn't you take enough of the stuff to finish you, and make one job of it?"

At this speech the ladies in the room were horror-stricken, and one or two of them hastily left the room.

"h. Lanra, don't be so angry," murmured the woman, "but why did you drag me into the Court, and why did you put that dear little child on the stand to swear against his grandmother?"

"Oh! Lanra, you are killing me—you are killing me. I want to die! (turning to the attendants), why didn't you let me die?"

"Look here," replied Mrs. Fair, in her wild, passionate way, "if you are going to die here before all these people, I want you to swear that my child spoke the truth on that stand. You know she did, and yet you and your lawyers tried to make her out a liar!"

"Well, she's out of danger, ain't she?" asked Mrs. Fair of the Doctor. The Doctor said he hoped so. "Well, I don't see that I can do any good; so I'll go," she said. And after a few more pleasant little passages between mother and daughter, the latter vanished and did not again appear on the scene.

The Reese Liver Foville says: Patrick Donohoe appeared before Judge Logan to-day for a preliminary examination upon the charge of robbing the stage on the Battle Mountain road, on the night of the 25th of September. On account of the absence of witnesses for the State the hearing was postponed until Friday, the 18th inst.

REV. NORMAN McLEOD.—Of all things on earth, defend us from a political person. He is the most disgusting being that walks on earth. A man that prostitutes his high calling as a minister of the Gospel to the aid of parties or cliques of an entirely political nature, ought to be drummed out of decent society. The Rev. Norman McLeod is one of these whitened sepulchres. He must needs disgrace his cloth by speaking at a political meeting in Salt Lake. In his harangue, this politico-pious priest felt constrained to say:

Were he a Southern man, he would talk and vote for Grant, for Grant knew their hearts and could feel for the brave men of the South.

If Grant could feel for the South or its brave men, he has been most successful in restraining all outward sign of his inward emotions. The only feeling he has manifested towards the South has been that of hate and vengeance. He delivered it into the hands of the spoiler. At this present moment, in Arkansas, white people are fleeing for their lives from the fury of a negro mob, whose passions have been wrought upon by a malefactor, a murderer, one of Grant's carpet-baggers, in order to avoid being tried for the crimes he has committed. Acts speak louder than words, and during the whole of Grant's administration the South has been oppressed and pillaged; and the only portion of that region which shows any degree of prosperity, are those States which have been rescued from the accursed rule of Grant's supporters. This is the solemn, sacred truth, that cannot be successfully denied or controverted. In spite of these well known facts, a canting wolf in sheep's clothing, that professes to be a minister of Him who proclaimed "peace on earth and good will unto all men;" this recreant gets up in public and whines out that "Grant can feel for the brave men of the South." Yes, the way he felt for them was after the fashion that Saturn felt for his children when he devoured them.

The State Capitol has been lighted with Maxim gas. So says the Carson Register.
